Who has terrible tusks and terrible claws?

Before my daughter was born, I thought that one of the benefits of having a child would be getting the inspiration to write a timeless classic children's book. After all The Hobbit, The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe, Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats – all first started life as just attempts to entertain a nearby child, if I remember rightly.

But, though the baby came, inspiration did not. Perhaps it was for the best: reading the old Thomas the Tank Engine stories by the Rev'd W Awdry, I can't help but wonder how much the trains and their dramas reflect the Reverend's own parishioners. (The original Thomas stories are also unbelievably boring.)

On the plus side, this did open up a new world to me of modern (ie later than my own childhood) children's literature: the sort of books that are printed, not on paper, but on boards, so you cannot eat them.

Julia Donaldson (The Gruffalo, Room on the Broom, etc) is obviously the queen here. Her books are so fun to recite aloud, it feels more like performing than reading: from the catchy rhythm of The Gruffalo to the primitive beats of the Tales from Acorn Woods series, specially for little children, "Poor old fox / has lost his socks / he looks in a chest / and finds his vest". The only criticism I have is that the lift-the-flap flaps can sometimes be hard to flip.

Even in the land of baby's board books, there can be a certain, unexpected darkness; even deeper the momentary peril of being threatened by a dragon or Gruffalo. In Jon Klassen's award winning I Want My Hat Back and sequels, the theft of a hat is punished severely. In Not Now, Bernard, a small boy who is regularly ignored by his parents ("not now, Bernard"), is eaten by a monster, who then tries to menace Bernard's parents, only to be ignored in turn. It's like something out of Kafka.

Of course, darkness in children's literature is one of those things that 'twas ever thus, "Don't go into Mr McGregor's garden," warned old Mrs Rabbit, "your Father had an accident there; he was put in a pie by Mrs McGregor." What repressed trauma indeed!

G K Chesterton (1874-1936) famously defended darkness in children's stories, the child would have made the dragon in his imagination anyway; the story tells him that St George can slay the dragon. Or at least – looking back to some of the stories above – we can suggest that the dragon is something one can at least cope with, even with a wry smile.

This is something I think about at baptisms. Baptism is a good thing and nice: a “washing of rebirth and renewal by the Holy Spirit” (Titus 3.5). But it is also being united with Christ in his death (Romans 6.3-4). Dipping someone into the font is the image is of washing, but also of drowning, or burial – and resurrection. In ancient icons of the baptism of Jesus, the waters of baptism look dark and murky indeed – sometimes the painter even adds dragons!

This isn't something we talk about much at baptisms. But maybe we should. Baptism is not just a nice thing to do, but a real gift for a real, sometimes dark and dangerous world. The same world that Christ came into, and which literally buried him; but which he also overcame.

Meanwhile I see from the news that some American schools have banned the Bible, as a book not suitable for younger readers. But the darkness still is there, whether you dare to look at it or not. And darkness is something that the Bible never fails to engage with – in many, sometimes complicated, ways, admittedly. But the Bible is clear that darkness, in the end, is never able to overcome the light of the world, the light of the Word, which is a lantern to our feet and a light to our path.(Psalm 119.105).

Someone once told me a story about a local school who wanted a talk on Easter – ‘but could you try not to mention the crucifixion?’ Yet even Elowen's little lift-the-flap Bible does not shy away from this:

*“Jesus knew he would die. It was all right. God planned it long ago. Jesus would take the blame for every wrong thing anyone had ever done. The soldiers killed Jesus on a cross. They put his body in a tomb and rolled a stone in front. But God's special plan hadn't ended...”

R

*from Lift the Flap Bible by Sally Lloyd Jones and Trace Moroney – highly recommended by me as a good children's bible for under 7s.

Rev'd Richard will be leaving us in September

Bishop Philip has received the Revd Magrath's resignation as priest in charge of the benefice of Saltash (St Nicholas & St Faith and St Stephen) and priest in charge of the benefice of Landrake (St Michael) with St Erney and Botus Fleming. This takes place with effect from 3 September 2023.

Bishop Philip thanks the Revd Magrath for his ministry in these parishes and wishes him God's blessing on him for all the future holds. Rev'd Magrath wishes the deanery well with implementing their deanery plan, but believes it is not a ministry to which he himself is called.

Messy Church

50 people came into St Stephens Church on 17 June to hear the story of Noah's Ark and take part in crafts to celebrate the story. Paper boats were made (and floated), a mobile with Noah's family under the rainbow was created and biscuits were decorated with rainbows. Many animals were crafted and placed in the Ark (see above). The children even found time to make a card for a special person on Father's Day.

Our worship reflected on the story and one brave child took on the role of the dove and searched the Church for an olive branch! As well as having fun, I hope that, in common with Noah, we all learnt at least three things from the story: (i) take no notice of people who ridicule you for following God's will (ii) Prepare well to fulfil God's wishes and (iii) remember that God is always with us.

Of course the afternoon finished with a spread provided by Sylvia and Carol. We are so grateful for all our helpers at Messy Church.

If there is anyone out there who could play the music for our worship once a month, I'd love to hear from you!

MOSSAF

We were delighted to welcome Bishop Hugh to our Church for our June meeting

Bishop Hugh is currently the Bishop of St Germans and the Armed Forces Bishop. He comes from a Christian family and many of his family were members of the clergy. He had no thoughts of becoming a priest although he has been a Christian all his life. One day he went into a second-hand bookshop that had a book on the shelf about Community work, thought that God had led him there and decided to go to a community in L'Arche (people with and without learning disability, on a mission to build a world where everyone belongs) and was amazed by it. When he returned to London he went to the L'Arche centre where he stayed for 15 years. He said that he had learned about the 'beauty' of people whilst there.

After leaving L'Arche, Hugh became a priest and served in Kent for several years. He was consecrated as a Bishop in Lambeth Palace during the time of Covid and moved to Cornwall with his wife and children to be installed as Bishop of St Germans and later as the Armed Forces Bishop.

We had a very interesting Q&A session after which the members responded with a round of rapturous applause and thanked him for giving his time to talk to us.

In July our members will be visiting the Weary Friar to enjoy a meal together and then in August we are delighted to welcome guest speaker Canon Chancellor of Truro Cathedral, Alan Bashforth.

If you wish to join MOSSAF please get in touch with Steve Hookway, Roger Rowse or Dave Coot.

A Boat Beneath a Sunny Sky

A boat beneath a sunny sky,
Lingering onward dreamily
In an evening of July –

Children three that nestle near,
Eager eye and willing ear,
Pleased a simple tale to hear –

Long has faded that sunny sky:
Echoes fade and memories die:
Autumn frosts have slain July.

Still she haunts me, phantomwise,
Alice moving under skies
Never seen by waking eyes.

Children yet, the tale to hear,
Eager eye and willing ear,
Lovingly shall nestle near.

In a Wonderland they lie,
Dreaming as the days go by,
Dreaming as the summers die:

Ever drifting down the stream –
Lingering in the golden gleam –
Life, what is it but a dream?

Thank You!

Many thanks to all who support the Children's Society with the house boxes. This year, you raised £576.89. This amount includes a donation and money raised from the sale of coffee and cake. This is an amazing amount especially when we are all struggling with the rising cost of living.

A big thank you to Len, Ray and Roger who open the boxes and count money. Also Sylvia for her support serving tea and cake.

Prayer for International Unrest

Almighty Father,
whose will is to restore all things in your beloved Son,
the King of all: govern the hearts and minds of those in authority, and bring the families of the nations, divided and torn apart by the ravages of sin, to be subject to his just and gentle rule.

Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Mother's Union

In June, Mothers' Union held their afternoon meeting in St Stephens. After prayers and notices, we welcomed Rev Lynn Parker. Lynn came to tell us "Her Story" beginning with a happy childhood in the 50s, in the Midlands and Somerset. Lynn was adopted into a Christian family where she gained two brothers and two sisters. Regular Sunday worship was normal to the family and Lynn became involved in the Church family. She heard God speaking to her when she was 14 years old. He assured her that He had a job for her and Lynn aimed to fulfil that promise. Throughout a career in Boots, sales executive, wife to Tony, mother to two children, teacher and having survived a serious illness, Lynn has kept her faith in God. Later, after many church roles and much training, Lynn became the Priest for Torpoint, Maryfield, Anthony and Sheviok, upon the retirement of Brian Anderson. When Lynn retired, she and her husband came to live in Saltash and she is a regular at the Wednesday morning service. Although retired, Lynn was recently commissioned as Rural Dean of East Wivelshire. As Lynn said, "only God knows the rest of her story."

We thank Lynn for her story and for her company.

Next month Mothers' Union will be visiting St Nicholas Church for a talk from Richard Margetts.

St Mary's Flower Festival

The Churches in the Saltash Team, with the addition of Landulph, were together again for the festival. The weather was kind and visitors included both old families returning and couples new to the area.

Messrs Pengelleys generously supported the day which raised £600. Many thanks to the organisers for their support and hard work and to George Roberts, the Landulph/St Dominic organist, for his one-hour recital and the St Stephens bell ringers and friends including two Botus learners.
